Aid, education, healthcare & project facilities impacted by conflict in INSO-monitored countries in 2022

One year on from the Russian invasion of Ukraine, NGOs continue to face a challenging access environment and substantial risks, particularly in eastern Ukraine.

Since 24 February 2022, INSO has recorded 26,458 incidents. While the past year's hostilities have not directly translated to a proportional rise in NGO incidents, which remained relatively low, there remain extreme risks for humanitarians operating in southern and eastern Ukraine. NGOs should anticipate increasing levels of physical risk to staff and assets in both regions, as evidenced by an uptick in lethal NGO incidents in Q4 2022 and Q1 2023.

With the recent renewed Russian offensive and a Ukrainian counteroffensive anticipated, measures imposed by Ukrainian forces will continue to pose access limitations. And as civil-military coordination with Russian forces remains unreliable, NGOs delivering aid near front-line areas will continue to be exposed to severe collateral risk.

Missile strikes targeting critical infrastructure and logistics routes across the North-Centre and West will remain a threat to NGO movements. Unexploded ordnance is also likely to be present in recaptured areas, posing severe access challenges to NGOs delivering aid.
